1. The Banska Stiavnica (Q 49/C 53) airfield is on a plateau approximately 1,500 meters southwest of the railroad station, south of the road to Stefultov (Q 49/C 53), just south of two small lakes. There were no runways or drainage facilities on the landing field, which was approximately 300x1,000 meters. There was no railroad spur track.
2. A wooden shed and a three-story building, approximately 100 meters long and occupied by civilian laborers, were on the eastern edge of the field, which was not occupied or guarded.
3. The field was used during the war by German aircraft and then by light Soviet planes. *

Comment. This is the first report on the Stiavnica airfield, which is apparently of minor importance.
